

About New Treks

New Treks teaches the foundations of adventure by instructing an elective class in Title 1 schools to remove barriers and increase access to the outdoors for Denver’s underserved youth. Classes are a combination of lecture-based learning, experiential learning, class time field trips, life skill projects, and half/full day trips. We teach in the classroom, at local green spaces, and utilize partner locations.

Location: Denver, CO and surrounding areas

About the position - 10 Month Seasonal (Aug 1 - May 31) or Year Round

Your primary role will be teaching outdoor/environmental education classes at Title 1 Schools. Curriculum includes a range of topics that are related to environmental science, sustainability, and recreation. Each lesson includes social-emotional learning and incorporates teachings for students to gain transferable skills. You will follow the curriculum provided to you, while incorporating your own teaching style. You will start as an Assistant Instructor, shadowing classes, to gain the knowledge, skills, and comfort of teaching our students. This process is expected to take a Quarter and will have you increasingly gain responsibilities to become a Lead Instructor. Factors that may expedite the shadowing process are your experience, confidence, work ethic, and ability level. There are possibilities for the position to be year-round with summer programming, if you choose. We will ask about other interests and qualifications that could work alongside your instructor responsibilities. This will ensure you have 30-40 hours of work a week and assist with growth.

Pay

Pay starts at $18/hr during your shadowing period. Pay increase occurs when you become a Lead Instructor and varies based on certifications, experience, and the recommendation of your training Instructor(s).
